

recreational products

If you are a manufacturer, distributor or retailer of recreational products, our lawyers can advise you on a wide range of product liability issues. These include what regulatory requirements recreational products have to meet, consumer instructions and warnings, limitation on liability clauses and product recalls. We also have many years of experience defending hundreds of product liability personal injury lawsuits involving everything from ATVs to bicycles to swimming pools.

Our lawyers are frequently consulted by US and European counsel regarding the design, testing and labelling requirements for recreational products as well as on reporting obligations to Health Canada and Transport Canada in the event of regulatory non-compliance.

we have the experience and the resources

We understand that the effective defence of recreational products requires an understanding of the interaction of environment, user and product and the important role played by each when accidents occur. We understand the engineering and the science that relate to product design and warnings. We have worked with many of the leading experts in these key areas. Our lawyers have the knowledge and experience to defend your products and your brand.

helpful links:

Hazardous Products Act \(R.S., 1985, c. H-3\)

Health Canada

Health Canada, Recreational and Sports Products Homepage

<< RETURN to Product Liability Litigation